COUNCIL VOTES FOR PURCHASE OF INHALATOR

Proposal Made By Member Of Bayshore Voluntary Fire Department At Session

Endeavoring to create a fire department and first aid crew of the highest caliber, the Bayshore City Council, at its regular meeting, voted to purchase an inhalator for the use of the Bayshore Volunteer Fire Department.

This will be loaned to the Bayshore Fire District and its fire department for as long as members may wish to use it.

The request, on behalf of the volunteers, was made to the City Council by Joseph Walling. He said that his department would stand ready at all times of need and felt that the addition of the inhalator to the district's equipment would be a valuable asset.

CLOSE COURSE OF LECTURES FOR ITS MEMBERS

Seventeenth District Of Parent Teachers Ends Consumer Education Program

The seven weeks course in consumer education offered by the Seventeenth District, California Congress of Parents and Teachers, Inc., to its members and those interested, was brought to a close, Tuesday of this week, at the San Mateo Junior College, through a panel discussion summarizing the lectures previously given.

Mrs. Shirley Douglas, graduate dietitian of the University of California, spoke on home management, the problem of the individual homemaker. Referring to guides and sources for securing information regarding the subject, she gave a few rules whereby the homemaker can provide better living conditions for her family for less money; first, by planned spending, that is having a market list, a budget worked out by the entire family and keeping accounts; second, by using principles of diet in relation to the family and considering money allowed for foods; third, through better buymanship, having planned shopping hours and knowing where, what and how to buy. Thus by familiarizing oneself with these rules, home management can be much easier with more to spend, more to save, more time for oneself, better living for the family and the satisfaction of knowing that the job is well done.

Citing the fact that Seventeenth District is a pioneer in this consumer educaton movement, Mrs. Elmer L. Miller, president, expressed her gratitude to the approximately 150 in attendance and on behalf of Seventeenth District she thanked the speakers and those responsible for the success of such a course.

Greyhound Owner Is Exonerated Of Violation Charge

The case of Clarence Woods, Brisbane greyhound owner, accused of having in his possession more dogs than the county ordinance allows, was automatically dropped when it was found he had already filed application for a permit.

Dwey Housley, also of Brisbane, turned in the complaint, recently, charging Woods with keeping more than two greyhounds, the maximum number allowed without a permit under Ordinance 304.

High School P. T. A.

Jefferson Union High School P. T. A. was represented at the Consumers Education Class, held in San Mateo Tuesday morning of this week, by Mesdames R. Remington, Mazie Boyle, Rose Watson, Marge Woodside and Olda Marquis.

The next meeting of the Jefferson High School P. T. A. will be held in the school Tuesday, November 19, at 2 p. m.

FALL OPENING TO SEE FAMOUS THOROUGHBREDS

Runners From All Parts To Compete In Comprehensive Stakes Program At Tanforan Course

Ushered in on a wave of national enthusiasm for racing, Tanforan—California's pioneer race course—throws open its gates Tuesday, November 16, for the annual fall meeting of twenty-five days.

Starting with the $2000 added Tanforan Opening Day Handicap and continuing through the stakes program, which embraces eleven featured climaxed by the closing $10,000 San Francisco Handicap on Saturday, December 18, a parade of thoroughbred champions will compete for the rich prizes.

Undoubtedly the strongest array of thoroughbred talent ever assembled in northern California will answer the bugle call at Tanforan. In addition to the horses which are already campaigning on the coast at this time, shipments of eastern runners are arriving constantly at the San Bruno plant.

Racegoers will find Tanforan in spick and span shape for the opening. A neat wire fence has replaced the wooden structure fronting the El Camino Real highway, additional parking space has been added and the infield decorated.

Something new in the way of stable accommodations will house the motion picture colony horses this season. J. W. Marchbank, directing owner of Tanforan, confronted with an increased number of stable applications from film stars, neatly solved the problem by building a new stable area—Hollywood at Tanforan. He purchased ground adjacent to the course, ordered two new and modern cottage barns built and has room for more to be erected should the demand arise in future.

Judge Floyd L. McKinney will again head the official family as presiding steward.

Judge Julius G. Reeder, racing secretary and handicapper, will also again serve in the dual role of general manager. He is now on the ground attending to details preliminary to the opening. Judge Reeder made a tour of eastern tracks in the interest of California racing and has arranged for many shipments of clever horses, a number of which are already campaigning at this time.

PROJECT STARS SOON TO STAGE FAMOUS PLAY

Great Laugh Hit Now Showing To See Its Final Performances During Coming Week

Next week will be the final week of the Federal Theater Project's staging of Julian Thompson's ten-strike laugh hit, "The Warrior's Husband," at the Alcazar Theater.

On November 17 the Theater Project opens with "Justice," by John Galsworthy. Galsworthy is the fourth of a group of world famous living playwrights who have released their work for production by the government players. Inasmuch as "Justice" was the piece that was largely responsible for recognition of Galsworthy as a great playwright, and at the same time one of the best plays ever done by him, much interest is being expressed by local theater goers in its production.

"Justice" will have a cast of ace actors, among whom are Will Vedder, Rupert Drumm, Leon Forbes, Maurice Hugo, Daniel Pennell, J. Raymond Northcutt, Max West, Robert Clarke, David Cole, Willis West, Crawford Perks, Walter Farnsworth, Edward Ferris, Edward Regan and others. There are twenty-four male characters and one feminine, the latter being played by Alice Hult.

MAN BEATS WOMAN

Nancy Schoonmaker was defeated for the Congressional post in the twenty-seventh district of New York, Tuesday of this week, by a mere man—Lewis K. Rockefeller.

N. Y. Couple Coming West With Duke

Playing hosts to the Duke and Duchess of Windsor on their forthcoming American tour wlli be Charles Eugene Bedeaux, New York millionaire, and his wife (pictured above). The Bedeaux' recently arrived from their chateau in France to complete arrangements for the tour. They will accompany the celebrated couple to the Pacific coast.

It's Supposed To Be A Secret— But Ring Leaders Admit Too Much

Parent Teacher officials advise Brisbanites to step to their calendars and draw a red ring around the date of November 21.

For, they predict, "something big in Brisbane and beneficial to the community" is planned for that day, something anent amusement, refreshment, dancing.

They promise, in short ,a carnival occasion—the proceeds of which will go to enlarge the children's Christmas party fund. The event is sponsored entirely by the local unit, whose slogan is, "The children depend on us, we depend on you."

Proof that beauty and brains are frequently found together, is furnished by Margaret Chandler of Spokane, Wash., who at 24 is the first woman to be named manager of traffic for an important northwestern air line. She is pictured giving orders over the telephone.

ASSOCIATIONS OF COUNTY PRESS JOINT SESSION

San Mateo And Santa Clara Counties Units Meet And Fraternize

The San Mateo County Press Association met in joint session with the Santa Clara County Press Association at Bertrand's Oakwood Inn on the Middlefield Road near Palo Alto, Monday evening of this week. Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Harris of the Menlo Park Recorder were hosts.

A tasty and bountiful dinner was served to twenty-four guests.

The dinner was followed by a short business session at which a number of interesting subjects were discussed.

After the joint session ,the nominating committee of the San Mateo County Press Association submitted the names of the following to act as officers for the coming year: For president, L. E. Harris, Menlo Park Recorder; vice president, Harry Butler, San Mateo Times; secretary-treasurer, George McQueen, Burlingame Advance.

The honor guests of the evening were George Morell, Peninsula Beacon, president of the California Newspaper Publishers Association, and Miss Edith Allen, manager of the San Francisco office of the C. N. P. A.

Those present from Santa Clara County were Mr. and Mrs. Walter Keene, Mountain View Register-Leader; Robert Couchman, Morgan Hill Times; Ray Lovett, Palo Alto Times, and Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Bradley, Willow Glen Recorder.

The San Mateo County Press Association was represented by Aileen Bramble, South San Francisco Enterprise; George McQueen, Burlingame Advance; Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Pitschke, Daly City Record; Mr. and Mrs. Lester E. Lafferty, San Carlos Enquirer; Mr. and Mrs. P. W. Brubaker and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Butler, San Mateo Times; Mr. and Mrs. Sam H.Winklebleck, Redwood City Tribune; Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Harris, Menlo Park Recorder and Mr. and Mrs. Floyd F. McCue, Redwood City Standard.

HEALTH EXPERT SPEAKS AT OUR HIGH SCHOOL

Enlightens Students Regarding Causes And Methods Of Cure For Tuberculosis

Miss Beatrice Woodward, traveling representative of the California Tuberculosis and Health Association, delivered an interesting and enlightening talk to the students of the Jefferson Union High School, Thursday of last week.

Miss Woodward said that tuberculosis is a disease that can be cured. The only way to get its germ is from someone who has it, and, she stated, tuberculosis is not hereditary.

The greatest known weapon for control of this disease is the skin test, because tuberculosis gives no outward sign of its existence. This test is not a serum or a vaccine, but merely a test to find out if tuberculosis germs have entered the body. The skin test is a colorless fluid made under government supervision.

In 1907 Christmas seals were first sold to combat tuberculosis, $3,000 being obtained in this way the first year, and the amount has increased year by year. The total amount acquired since the sale began is $83,000,000. We have surpassed all the countries in Europe in the sale of Christmas seals.

Miss Woodward stated that the money goes back to the people in a heatlh program for the prevention of tuberculosis.

The speaker was introduced by Miss Juanita Young, physical education instructor.

IS CAUGHT STEALING

At Los Angeles, Tuesday of this week, George L. Vanderheide, convicted recently on charges that he embezzled $2476 in post office funds, was sentenced to one year in the County jail.

Vanderheide was formerly postmaster at Bishop, Calif.

TOWN ANSWERS TO RED CROSS ANNUAL CALL

County Chairman Looks To Brisbane For Active Support in Drive

Brisbane, alert little community that it is, is responsive to the annual roll call of the San Mateo County Chapter, Red Cross, which will begin Armistice Day, November 11, and close Thanksgiving Day.

Already, according to Miss Helen Chesebrough, county chairman of the roll call, there is every indication that Brisbane means to support the appeal for funds for the Red Cross enthusiastically.

Mrs. William J. Jonas has been appointed chairman of the Red Cross roll call at Brisbane.

"Besides having been called upon to administer aid to the thousands of flood victims back East this year, our Red Cross Chapter has carried on a program of local relief for the needy," said Miss Chesebrough.

"The Red Cross has never been found wanting when it comes to aiding the needy or any disaster victims and I believe Brisbane's residents fully realize that fact, for there is every indication that the people of this thriving community mean to back us in our efforts to pass last year's figure of $5331 which we obtained in the roll call."

"We know that Mrs. Jonas and her splendid little group of Brisbane workers will push the Red Cross appeal for funds over to success in Brisbane."

Red Cross memberships for a $1 or donations to the cause are the means of raising the necessary funds.

"SAFETY" THEME OF MEETING AT LOCAL SCHOOL

Instructor Illustrates His Points With Slides And Plates At Session

The Brisbane Parent Teacher Association held its regular monthly meeting, Thursday of last week, in the Brisbane School Auditorium.

The theme for the evening was "Safety." Mr. Keller, an instructor in the Burlingame High School, spoke on safe driving, showing many slides and plates prepared by the Burlingame High School students.

The Traffic Squad of the Brisbane School entertained with harmonica selections, under the direction of Mrs. White.

Community singing was led by Gertha McKinney. Mrs. Josephine Nowicke, refreshment chairman, served coffee and doughnuts.

The next regular P. T. A. meeting will be November 18.

Mrs. Cordoza's room won the P. T. A. banner this month.

The children are urging their parents to attend the meetings, for this is the only means of winning.

Press Association Will Hold Annual Meet At Stanford

The fourteenth annual convention of the Central California Press Association will be held at Stanford University, Saturday of this week. Guides will conduct delegates from the various schools over the campus.

Kathleen Norris, famous author, will speak on "Creative Writing." Members of the Stanford journalism faculty and aides will conduct the group meetings on various phases of journalism.

Brisbane Woman Is Honored At Dinner

Mrs. Joe Fontes of Klamath srteet, Brisbane, celebrated her birthday on Wednesday night of last week. A dinner in her honor was held at an inn at Palo Alto.

Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Fountain of San Francisco, who formerly resided in Brisbane; Doctor and Mrs. S. J. Guardino and Joe Fontes.

There Seems to Be Several Angles in This Football Game

THIS game called football: Cognomen confusers — Bethel college, McKenzie, Tenn., and Bethel college, Kansas. Bowling Green Teachers' college, Kentucky, and Bowling Green Normal school, Ohio. Dickinson college, Pennsylvania, and Dickinson Teachers' college, North Dakota. Marquette university, Wisconsin, and Marquette Teachers' college, Michigan. Monmouth college, Illinois, and Monmouth Normal school, Oregon.

Twenty-eight Notre Dame graduates coach college teams as compared to seven from Minnesota. Only two alumni of Carlisle, as famed on the gridiron 25 years ago as the Irish and Gophers are now, are coaching. They are William Dietz at Albright and Gus Welch at American U.

Of the 40 or more football players whose last names are the names of colleges only two seem to be competing against their namesakes this year. Dickinson of Delaware played against Dickinson college and Marquette of Villanova bore down against Marquette. None of the athletes seem to be playing on teams bearing their own names. There is, though, a "Furman" at Cornell and a "Cornell" at California.

Coach Jock Sutherland of Pitt started his athletic career as a track and field man at Oberlin academy. At Pitt he played football, tossed the weights, was track captain and filled in his other idle hours with varsity wrestling.

How Irish Were Saved by Hairline Finishes

Hairline finishes—Elmer Layden's Notre Dame team was saved from defeat in the final minutes of play in three games during 1935. The Irish won from Pitt and Ohio State on last minute scores while tying Army in the final second, 6 to 6. That year Notre Dame scored 27 points in the last seven minutes of play in seven games. In the Ohio State game Andy Pilney scored 18 points in the last quarter, 12 of them coming in the last two minutes.

Elmer Layden

In 1906 Cornell beat Oberlin, Hamilton, Bucknell, Bowdoin, Pitt, Holy Cross and Swarthmore. But was twice defeated by the Penn Frosh.

Coaches whose teams meet the coach's alma mammy this season include:

COACH AND COLLEGE	OPPONENT
1. Morey, Bates	1. Dartmouth
2. Crisler, Princeton	2. Chicago
3. Kern, Carnegie Tech	3. Pittsburgh
4. Little, Columbia	4. Penn
5. Neal, DePauw	5. Wabash
6. McMillan, Indiana	6. Centre
7. Yeager, Iowa State	7. Kansas State
8. Mylin, Lafayette	8. Franklin and Marshall
9. Croft, Montana State	9. Utah State
10. Peden, Ohio U.	10. Illinois

Harvard once had five plays from the Holy Cross one yard line (The extra chance being due to the Crusaders being offside) without scoring the touchdown.

Thomas of Middle Georgia college ran back the opening kickoffs for touchdowns in three games one season.

Duke plays teams from five different states in its first five games this season.

In 1936 Byron White of Colorado made four touchdown runs through the snow against Utah. After these jaunts of 39, 28, 89 and 45 yards he threw a 50 yard pass over the goal line for a fifth touchdown.

At least two Olympic contestants are playing college football this season, Hurdlers Forest Towns of Georgia and Fritz Pollard, Jr., of North Dakota. The two, incidentally, ran a 14.2 dead heat in the British Empire games.

In 1936 Guilford college defeated only Bridgewater. Bridgewater defeated only Gallaudet. Gallaudet defeated only Wilson Teachers. Wilson Teachers won none.

NOT IN THE BOX SCORE:

WHEN discussing football prospects Carl Snavely, coach of Cornell's high-riding eleven, could spot Gil Dobie six towels and still run away with any crying contest . . . Jack Dempsey has been a most frequent racetrack visitor recently. Can it be that Jack is taking the sport of kings seriously again after that technical kayo he suffered from his first experience with the gee gees? . . . Owner Benswanger of Pittsburgh is quoted as saying he would rather finish sixth with a fighting ball club than third in the manner of the 1937 Pirates. So it has been predicted there will be various trades this winter with Arky Vaughan already on the market . . . N. Y. U. may not be the hardest luck eleven of the year. But what other team has lost such keymen as Swiadon, Savarese, Williams and Bloom in rapid succession?

Three generations of Whitney owners, William C., Harry Payne and Cornelius V. have cheered while their famous Eton Blue and Brown Cap have been carried to victory in almost every important American stake and an Epsom Derby. The colors, which will be retired from the turf after this season, were obtained in England 50 years or so ago. "Those colors are a jinx," the famous English trainer Jack Lambert told William C. Whitney. "You can buy them for a song." . . . Art Rooney will return in the spring for another crack at the ponies. You can take a short price on that, horse players never quit. For instance there was a celebrated English punter, a higher roller than any Rooney, Gates or Chicago O'Brien. He's dead now but until he ended it all, shortly after being turned down for a fiver, he still had been talking of a comeback.

That football return duel between Fordham Tackle Barbartsky and Pitt End Daddio was a honey . . . Daddio and the other star Panther end, Frank Souchek, play numbers one and two on the Pitt golf team.

Cubs' Loss of Pennant Is Blamed on Wives

Some Chicagoans claim Charley Grimm's Cubs finished second this year because too many wives were interfering in their husbands' business . . . As usual most of the obit writers were wrong when Princeton's great lineman, Biffy Lea, died. He was not an All-America end for four years as most of them insisted. He was All - America tackle for three years and then, due to an injured shoulder which forced him to play with his arm strapped to his side all season, he moved out to end the next year. Made the All-America as end this time . . . It is extremely doubtful that the new world record for the mile, set in London last summer by Stan Wooderson, will be allowed by the intertional federation. There are two reasons, both sufficient under the rules to prevent acceptance of the mark. One is that the race was with club members. The other is that it was a paced race and he was permitted to have the pole all the way.

Charley Grimm

Umpires Emslie and Byron, once two of the best in the big time, visited the World Series. When they arrived at press headquarters the first guy they asked for was Casey Stengel.

Both the Yankees and Joe McCarthy are to be congratulated on their new contract. Joe has had plenty to work with. Baseball never has known a more efficient organization than the one shrewd Ed Barrow has perfected during his years as business manager. Yet some men squander their own talents as well as the gifts that are offered to them. Joe never has done that. He has made good and full use of every opportunity. Although $35,000 a year probably is beyond the comprehension of most of the fans who pay to make the club richer each season there is no doubt but what cash customers are wholeheartedly glad he is getting it.

Lightweight Champion Lou Ambers rushes from the dressing room to the nearest soda emporium after each bout to fill up on cantaloupe and ice cream . . . Two home games in Washington drew within $13,000 of what the Redskins took in at seven games in Boston . . . A British newspaper syndicate paid Tommy Farr $30,000 for his life story after the Joe Louis bout . . . Bill McKechnie, new manager of the Cincinnati Reds, formerly managed five of the seven rival pilots in the National league . . . They are Grimm, Frisch, Traynor, Grimes, and Wilson. . . Dean Cromwell, track coach at Southern California, let out a deep groan when Bob Peoples fractured his wrist in a freshman football game with Stanford, and no wonder . . . Peoples probably is the best javelin prospect in the United States.

Joe Louis' softball team has been touring California cities, asking a guarantee of only $150 a game . . . Joe gives all the receipts to the players . . . A letter addressed "Barney Ross, Somewhere in the U. S. A." was delivered to the welterweight champion in Chicago a few days ago . . . Dorothy Bundy, who eliminated Alice Marble from this year's national tennis tournament, is en route to Australia with Dorothy Workman.

CALIFORNIA News of the Week

Stanford Dedicates Memorial

Palo Alto.—Stanford University's new $500,000 theater, a memorial to the university's 3000 men and women who served in the World War, was dedicated last week in ceremonies participated in by President Ray Lyman Wilbur.

Brewery Workers Go CIO

Stockton.—The Brewery Workers Union here has voted to sever connections with the A.F.L. and affiliate with the C.I.O. Spokesmen for the latter group said the Stockton local was one of the first on the Coast to take such a step.

State Senator Resigns

Sacramento.—State Senator Dan E. Williams of Sonora has submitted his resignation to Gov. Merriam. Williams recently established his legal residence at Moscow, Idaho, preparatory to filing suit for divorce and thus automatically set aside his California citizenship, which, according to the interpretation by the Secretary of State's office, disqualified him for his legislative office.

Famed Ex-Sheriff Dies

Martinez. — Death has claimed former Sheriff R. R. Veale of Contra Costa County, one of the nation's most colorful peace officers. For 40 years he was sheriff, never shot a man although making innumerable captures of notorious criminals, and for 35 of those years he was secretary of the California Sheriffs' Association, which he organized. For the last year he had served as tax collector.

Liquor Sale Penalty

Sacramento.—The State Board of Equalization declared the minimum penalty for violation of the law prohibiting sales to minors will be suspension of liquor licenses for not less than ten days. The board's policy was determined after a study of several cases in which referees had recommended two and three days' suspensions for violations under certain "mild" conditions.

Postmasters Favor 3-Cent Rate

San Francisco.—I. A. Smoot of Salt Lake City was elected president of the National Association of Postmasters at the closing session of the organization's 37th annual convention here. The postmasters adopted a resolution recommending the 3-cent postage rate for first-class mail be continued "in order that the postal service may be expanded and improved and postal deficits may be avoided."

Counties Get Big Gasoline Fund

Sacramento.—The largest gasoline fund for any quarter since 1923, $12,500,000, has just been distributed to the counties of the State as their share of the levy for maintenance and construction of roads. Out of the total, $4,170,239 goes to the State's highway fund. Cities receive a fourth of the State's share. The $12,500,000 is 10.6 per cent more than was collected for the corresponding quarter last year.

To Register Small Employers

Sacramento.—Registration of all employers who hire from four to seven persons is being undertaken by the Unemployment Reserve Commission. The huge task involves sending more than a ton of mail containing registration forms to the postoffice. Minute instructions detailing all the steps in the progress of filling out the registration forms are being sent to all employers. Employers of four to seven persons will not be required to pay contributions to the fund for 1937, by virtue of a ruling by the Attorney-General, but they will have to make payments for the month of January, 1938.

Town To Be Moved

San Francisco.—S. C. Van Dyke, general manager of the Yuba Consolidated Gold Fields Company, announced the town of Hammonton, Yuba County, will be moved to a new site and the land in the present townsite dredged for gold. Buildings in Hammonton that will stand moving will be transported intact to the new site, while those that are too old to stand moving will be torn down and new buildings erected in the new town. Van Dyke said: "The cost of moving will be in excess of $100,000. With the present price of gold it will be possible for us to move the town and dredge the site at a profit. It would have been impossible under the old gold price." Hammonton has a population of approximately 500 persons.

Urge New Prison for Degenerates

San Diego.—A prison to "sweat out" degenerates, located in the San Joaquin Valley, was advocated by San Diego's new citizen's advisory committee on crime. "Degeneracy is not a disease but a habit," said District Attorney Thomas Whelan, committee head. "Hard labor is the best cure for those convicted of sex crimes. A penal institution in the hot, dry San Joaquin Valley seems to be the logical solution to prevent crimes of degeneracy."

Radiology a Young Science, but Makes Enormous Strides

What the X-Rays Have Done for Diagnosis and Cure

Chicago, Ill.—Radiology, the study and use of both X-rays and radium, is a comparatively young science, but it has turned out to be a precocious youngster. Reports to the International Congress of Radiology in Chicago showed the enormous strides it has made.

Household words today, X-rays were unknown 43 years ago, and radium was first obtained only 39 years ago. Treatment of cancer is the chief meaning these potent substances have in the minds of most persons. This is perhaps their most important field of usefulness but by no means their only one.

Diagnosis of disease has been made far more certain and accurate by means of the penetrating X-rays. "For example, the diagnosis of disease by X-rays has practically revolutionized the study and knowledge of tuberculosis and nearly all cases of this once-dreaded disease are now diagnosed by X-rays," declared Dr. Arthur C. Christie of Washington, D. C., president of the congress. "Most stomach ulcers are diagnosed by the X-ray, as are bone and kidney diseases, afflictions of the sinuses, of the teeth, and even the brain.

Every Organ and Bone Visible.

"In fact, all organs of the body as well as the bone structures can now be made apparent to the radiologist for his diagnosis. By injection of air and gas into the ventricles of the brain, tumors or other brain diseases may be studied from the X-ray film findings. Intravenous injections of certain dyes into the veins outline the gall-bladder.

"Foreign bodies, such as nails, coins, and other metals occasionally swallowed by children, can be accurately located by the X-ray so that the bronchoscopist may extract these dangerous objects.

"Inflammatory lesions, such as boils, carbuncles, muscular arthritis, are often cured or reduced by X-ray therapy."

Sudan Grass Is Safe for Pasturage Only When Long

Madison, Wis.—Farmers who have pastures of sudan grass, which frequently contains prussic acid, are warned by the Wisconsin College of Agriculture here to make sure that the grass is more than a foot high before cattle are allowed to graze on it.

Short sudan grass, especially when dark in color, has been found to contain dangerous amounts of the acid, one of the deadliest poisons known and blamed in the past for a number of cattle deaths.

Ancient Folsom Man Is Still Among the Missing

Washington.—Folsom man is still missing.

So says Dr. Frank H. H. Roberts, Jr., of the Smithsonian Institution, who has returned from a third summer spent hunting this elusive American.

Folsom men, widely regarded scientifically as the oldest known inhabitants of our continent, hunted big game perhaps 10,000 years ago, but are traced today only by their trail of stone weapon points and by a Colorado campground where a group of them rested.

This year, Dr. Roberts says he worked toward what seems to have been the center of their camp. He found more of their stone work but no human burials. So—Folsom man is still missing.

Keystone State Beavers Increasing Rapidly

Harrisburg, Pa. — Ninety-six beavers, imported into Pennsylvania where they had been extinct, have multiplied to well over 15,000, according to the last beaver count.

The 96 animals were brought in between 1917 and 1924; no beavers had been found in Pennsylvania for the 70 years prior to 1917.

The beavers represent, it was stated, a decided economic asset, for, now that trapping is permitted, the annual take ranges upward of 6,500 beavers worth more than $20,000.

BANG!

"When you arrived home late last night I suppose you had to endure a long drawn-out bombardment of words."

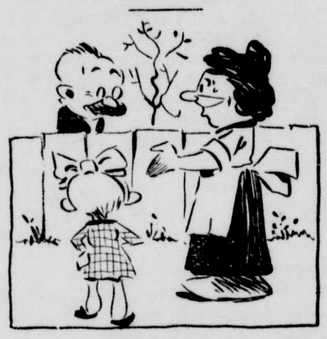
"No; got 'em all in a lump—the wife threw a dictionary at me."

MAYBE HE HAS IT

Percy Dull—Aw—do you think ignorance is—aw—bliss, Miss Pert?

Miss Pert—Why, you never seem unhappy, Mr. Dull.

OUT OF HEARING



"Bessie is making such fine progress on the piano, don't you think we ought to send her to New York?"

"Decidedly! But let me suggest Paris as a more distant point."

THAT'S ALL

Doctor (examining patient)—Hair torn out, face bruised and nerves badly shocked. Need careful nursing. Married, I suppose.

Patient—No, sir; I was hit by an automobile.

OBEYING ORDERS

"So you slapped Bobby on the face when he kissed you? What did he do then?"

"Turned the other cheek—and kissed me on that."

OUT-OF-DATE

"Men never fight duels over women any more."

"Not any more—the lady just shoots the one she doesn't want."

"I dreamed I visited his Satanic Majesty last night."

"Probably too much meat."

"No; must have been the angel food we had for dessert."

A Wide Difference

The difference between perseverance and obstinacy is that one often comes from a strong will and the other from a strong won't.

Sport that is sport only for the onlookers, is not sport.

Intimate fellowships sail the sea of Give and Take.

Being "resigned to the inevitable" is sometimes an excuse for the yellow streak.

I WAS NEVER SO EMBARRASSED -FOR I KNEW THAT ACID-INDIGESTION WAS DISTRESSING TO ME AND OFFENSIVE TO OTHERS BUT NOW—I JUST ALKALIZE THE EASY PHILLIPS' WAY

The quick way to alkalize is this: Take two teaspoons of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia 30 minutes after eating and drinking. Or, when among others — take two Phillips' Tablets that come in a small flat tin you carry in purse or vest pocket. — You do it unnoticed.

Relief is almost immediate. "Gas," nausea, acid breath and other offensive symptoms leave.—That "stuffed" feeling and pains from "acid indigestion" cease to annoy. You feel great.

This is the way, we believe, more doctors use than any other when alkalizing upset stomach.

Battle Half Over

A man prepared has half fought the battle.—Cervantes.

Still Coughing?

No matter how many medicines you have tried for your cough, chest cold, or bronchial irritation, you can get relief now with Creomulsion. Serious trouble may be brewing and you cannot afford to take a chance with any remedy less potent than Creomulsion, which goes right to the seat of the trouble and aids nature to soothe and heal the inflamed mucous membranes and to loosen and expel the germ-laden phlegm.

Even if other remedies have failed, don't be discouraged, try Creomulsion. Your druggist is authorized to refund your money if you are not thoroughly satisfied with the benefits obtained from the very first bottle. Creomulsion is one word—not two, and it has no hyphen in it. Ask for it plainly, see that the name on the bottle is Creomulsion, and you'll get the genuine product and the relief you want. (Adv.)

Bedtime Story for Children

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

WHY JUMPER THE HARE WAS NOT AFRAID

THE most surprising thing about the meeting of Buster Bear with the other little people of the Green Forest was that he was introduced by Jumper the Hare. Now you know, Jumper the Hare is very, very timid. Everybody knows that. He is so timid that some people say he is afraid of his own shadow. Of course, this isn't true, but it is true that he is very, very timid. So no one could understand how it happened that he dared to introduce Buster Bear. In fact, he didn't seem any more afraid of Buster than were Jimmy Skunk and Prickly Porky the Porcupine. But everyone knows why they are not afraid; Jimmy has a little bag of scent and Prickly Porky has a thousand little spears to make other people, even those a great deal bigger than they are, respect them.

"Why," Said He, "Buster Bear Comes From the Great Woods, Where I Came From."

But Jumper the Hare has nothing of the kind. He has nothing with which to win respect save his long legs, and as he uses those to run away with, of course, he never wins respect with them, for you know people who run away are seldom respected. So it was that when Jumper appeared not in the least afraid of Buster Bear and introduced him as a friend, the other little people, most of whom were frightened almost to death, couldn't understand it at all. Peter Rabbit wasn't there at the time, but, of course he heard of it, and it puzzled him more than it did anyone else. He is timid himself, is Peter Rabbit, but he isn't as timid as his big cousin Jumper. And yet here was he himself having little cold chills of fright at the very thought of those great claws of Buster Bear, while Jumper was not afraid at all. It was too much for Peter, and the first chance he got he asked Jumper about it.

Jumper smiled. "Why," said he, "Buster Bear comes from the Great Woods where I came from, and I know all about him and he knows all about me. So we are friends."

Peter scratched his head thoughtfully. Somehow he didn't understand any better than before. "Aren't you afraid of those great big, cruel claws?" he asked.

Jumper shook his head. "No," said he. "Why should I be afraid of them?"

"Because they can tear you all to pieces!" yelled Peter promptly.

"But they can't!" cried Jumper happily. That is just what they can't do, and that is why I am not afraid!"

"I don't see why they can't," persisted Peter.

"Because they can't catch me!" Jumper made a long jump, a very long jump, twice as long a jump as Peter could make, as if to show why those cruel claws could not catch him. Peter began to see what Jumper the Hare meant.

"You mean you are not afraid of Buster Bear because you think Buster cannot catch you; is that it?" asked Peter.

Jumper nodded his head so fast that he made his long ears flop. "That's just it!" said he. "Buster Bear can't catch me. I know it and he knows it, and so he doesn't waste any time trying. Instead we are very good friends. The only things to be afraid of in this world are things you know may hurt you, no matter how sharp you watch out. Now, I am afraid of Granny Fox and Old Man Coyote because they are so sly and swift that I am never sure that I am safe from them. But Buster Bear is not swift enough or sly enough to make me afraid. When you have known Buster as long as I have you will know that he isn't half so terrible as he looks, and that he really can be very nice and no end of fun. I'm not afraid of Buster because I've learned how to keep out of his way, and when you've learned the same thing you won't be afraid either."

Peter looked as if he would like to believe it, but found it a little more than he could quite credit.

CHOCOLATE EVER POPULAR FLAVOR

Be Sure It Blends Properly With Other Ingredients.

By EDITH M. BARBER

THE Spaniards, when they conquered Mexico, took back to Spain gold and other treasures. Nothing, however, was appreciated so much by the Spanish people as a whole, as the chocolate, which soon became the national drink, as it had been and still is in Mexico. This was accomplished in spite of the fact that church officials considered it a wicked luxury, especially when it became the custom to have it brought during long services to church. In commenting upon this custom, Dr. Doran in his "Table Traits" announces, "A cup of good chocolate may indeed afford the drinker strength and patience to undergo a bad sermon."

"To make really good chocolate," says Brillat-Savarin, "one must solve a number of very subtle equations. The roasting of the cocoa bean is an operation so delicate as to require a tact bordering on inspiration." The roasting of the beans is very important whether they are to be used for manufacture of cake, chocolate or cocoa, as fine flavor is developed by the roasting process just as it is by roasting coffee.

In this country cocoa is used for the preparation of beverages more often than is chocolate. In the preparation of cocoa powder, a large part of the cocoa butter is removed. The quality of the cocoa bean and the amount of cocoa butter extracted as well as the roasting are all important.

When chocolate is used care must be taken that it is prepared in such a way that it will blend smoothly with the other ingredients of the recipe. For cake and cookies it may be melted over hot—not boiling—water. When it is used with hot milk for pudding or for beverages it may be cut into smaller pieces and melted in the milk. Instead, it may be cooked with a small amount of cold water over direct heat until the mixture is smooth and thick. A cake of chocolate has usually been marked off in squares which weigh one ounce. Recently one of the oldest manufacturers has marked it into half ounce pieces, which allows us to measure even more accurately than before. In order to have a smooth beverage when cocoa is used cold water should be added and stirred with the powder over the direct heat until the mixture is smooth and thick after which it may be boiled a moment before the cold milk is added. This method allows us to make cocoa with the use of only one utensil. As soon as the milk begins to steam the mixture should be beaten until foamy with a heavy beater in order to prevent the scum's forming.

Whipped cream is usually served with both chocolate and cocoa. Instead a marshmallow may be put into each cup before the beverage is poured This garnish is particularly favored by the children.

Chocolate Creole Cake.

2 cups sifted cake flour
1 teaspoon soda
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup butter or other shortening
¼ cups brown sugar
2 eggs, unbeaten
3 squares unsweetened chocolate, melted.
1 cup milk
1 teaspoon vanilla

Sift flour with soda and salt. Cream butter, add sugar gradually and cream together until light and fluffy. Add eggs, one at a time, beating well after each addition. Add chocolate and beat well. Add flour, alternately with milk. Add flavoring. Bake in two greased ten-inch layer pans or three nine-inch layer pans in a moderate oven (325 degrees Fahrenheit) thirty minutes.

Chocolate Delicacy.

⅓ cup butter
¾ cup powdered sugar
3 eggs
2 squares chocolate, melted
¼ cup dry sifted bread crumbs

Cream the butter with the sugar, add the egg yolks, slightly beaten; the melted chocolate and bread crumbs. Beat the egg whites and fold into the mixture. Grease two shallow cake pans and pour one-third of the butter into each, reserving the rest for the filling. Bake in a slow oven (325 degrees Fahrenheit) twenty minutes. Remove the pans and put together with the reserved filling. Serve garnished with whipped cream.

MANNERS OF THE MOMENT

THE people who always have to have two seats apiece whenever they ride two miles on a train . . . we could crown them.

Sometimes, we'll admit we envy them. We've tried ourselves by stacking magazines and hats and umbrellas all around us, to discourage people from trying to sit with us. But somehow a mother with a baby, or an old lady with a cane, always comes along and looks wistfully at our pile of belongings. And we're finished. By the end of the journey we're holding the baby or the cane.

So maybe it's sour grapes. But we've come to the conclusion that one seat is all a person with one ticket should try to fill. And the people who spread themselves out so comfortably over two should be firmly handled. If by scornful look, or gentle questioning we can't make them budge, we intend to sit right down on their feet, or their hats. That ought to teach them.

Interpreters of the Mode

SO LONG as you Sew-Your-Own, Milady, just so long will Yours Truly strive to interpret the mode for you. Today the trio brings you frocks for every size (from four years to size 52) for almost any occasion. Each has been designed to bring you the ultimate in style in its particular class and all claim a new high in simplicity and comfort.

Ultra-Smart Dress.

It's nice to know you're easy to look at even if the occasion is only another breakfast session. That's why the ultra-smart dress at the left is so handy to have. Note the clever detail all the way through even to the inverted skirt pleat. See how beautifully the sleeves set-in—you just know at a glance how simple it is to put together. Cotton, of course, is the material.

Typical of Youth.

The surest way to be a big little-body is to wear dresses that are as expertly planned as the grown-ups'. The little number above, center, has the smart styling of a sub-deb's frock. It is typical of youth's freshness and activity, and is one model that gets little girls' complete endorsement. It is the number one dress for the number one sweetheart in anybody's family.

An Orchid to You.

Do you think of a charming sorority tea with lots of atmosphere and plenty of style when you look at the handsome new two-piecer above, right? Would you like it made in one color and material, or, perhaps with a topper in gold lame or satin combined with a skirt of a rich dull fabric? Why not make it yourself to suit your own fancy and step into a swell little world of glamour crowded with fans and sun and festivity?

The Patterns.

Pattern 1401 is designed for sizes 36 to 52. Size 38 requires 4½ yards of 35-inch material.

Pattern 1366 is designed for sizes 6, 8, 10, 12, and 14 years. Size 8 requires 2⅜ yards of 39-inch material, plus 1¾ yards of machine-made pleating to trim, as pictured.

Pattern 1396 is designed for sizes 32 to 44. Size 34 requires 1⅞ yards of 39-inch material for the blouse, 1⅞ yards of 54-inch material for the skirt.

A General Quiz

1. What is the origin of the acre?
2. What is the difference between a Zeppelin and a dirigible?
3. What queen of a foreign country married an American citizen?
4. What is the length of the Great Wall of China?
5. What is the shortest verse in the Bible?
6. Have ships ever sailed through a northwest passage above Canada?
7. How large a navy has the Irish Free State?

Answers

1. Originally it was the area a yoke of oxen could plow in a day.
2. A dirigible is any aircraft lifted by gas which may be guided and propelled by mechanical means. A Zeppelin is a rigid dirigible of the type invented by Count von Zeppelin.
3. Queen Liliuokalani of Hawaii married John O. Dominis, a native of Boston.
4. The length of the Great Wall of China, including all spurs and loops, is estimated at 2,500 miles.
5. "Jesus wept," John 11:35.
6. Two ships recently met in Bellot strait, one from the east and one from the west, thus effecting intercommunication, which has been the object of navigators for four hundred years.
7. It has no navy. The name of this country has lately been changed by act of parliament to Eire, pronounced Air uh.

FIRST AID TO THE AILING HOUSE

By Roger B. Whitman

SMALL COAL SIZES

BECAUSE of the demand, stove size coal sells at a higher price than nut coal and pea coal, which are smaller. There is, of course, a desire to use these smaller sizes because of economy. Under certain conditions this is quite possible, although if the conditions are not met, coal gas is produced. This may result in puffs and even small explosions in the fire-box, or the passing of the coal gas through the house.

With coal of stove size and larger, the spaces between the lumps permit the free passage of air, and coal gas is burned off as fast as it is produced. The flickering blue flame above a bed of fresh coal is burning coal gas.

As small coal sizes pack more closely, air cannot pass through so freely, and the gas, which cannot burn without air, may collect in the fire-box. Later, with a spark, there may be a puff that will blow open the fire-door.

A strong chimney draft may pull air through a bed of packed coal, but if there are thin places, air will rush through them with the effect of a blacksmith's forge. This is a cause of clinkering. Forced draft is sometimes used through an electric blower that forces air into the ash-pit. With this there is also the possibility of clinkering. But there is also a risk of coal gas trouble. If the fire has been stoked some little time before the blower is turned on, the space above the coal bed becomes filled with coal gas; then, with the starting up of the blower, sparks passing through will ignite the gas, and there may be an explosion. A blower is safe only with skilful stoking and with watchfulness.

When small sizes are used, stoking should be by what is called the "hot spot" method. The first step in stoking is to rake the glowing coals into a sloping bank with the top at the level of the firing door. This leaves a cavity at the back, which is filled with new coal. Gas that is produced is then ignited by the "hot spot."

While there is economy in buying coal of small size, there may not be economy in using it. Unless a furnace is adapted to it, much of the small coal will drop through the grates unburned. Besides that, much more attention is required in maintaining a good fire.

"MEN AT WORK!" PORTENDS PROGRESS

When farm, field, and factory hoist aloft the banner reading, "Men at Work!" it's a welcome weather sign.

Going through the valley of the "great depression," America learned that legions of jobless men tramping the streets, hitting the dole, standing in breadlines, tell a mute story of ailing industries, idle wheels, and stores with empty aisles.

Looking today, not at the exchange quotations, but at the number of men who are carrying a fuller dinner pail, a heartening picture emerges. There are a few dark spots in employment like the railroads, but that is due only to the fact that they, unlike other industries, have not been able to meet increasing costs of operation by upping rates. Once such permission is granted by the government, they will doubtless re-establish themselves as a prime factor in flouting the ghost of unemployment.

At present there's a paradox in the railway labor picture. Between the middle of August and the middle of September, rails were forced to lay off 30,000 workers in order to meet wage increases granted to the rail unions. Pending rate increases which may put employment nearer normalcy, railroads must rest content with having put 70,000 new men to work since last year—which is no small record!

Though employment decreases in construction climbed as high as 118,000 in August, total unemployment for that month shows the country is steadily beating back the tides of depression. A conservative estimate places the number of jobless in August at 6,285,000, less by 1,436,000 than in August a year ago.

On the whole, there seems good reason for saying banners flying the welcome ensign, "Men at Work!" are on the increase!

SIGNIFICANCE OF ARMISTICE DAY

A song of joy swept round the world nineteen years ago on November 11.

Soldiers danced jigs of wild delight in the trenches, and millions of mothers wept for sheer gladness—the long torment of fear ended at last.

The world had never seen anything like the tumult and the cheering which stormed the heavens when word came the world's greatest and most terrible war was over. That war killed 126,000 American doughboys, and wounded and gassed nearly twice that number. It cost the world 400 billion dollars, and no nation is yet through paying the costs of that holocaust.

Yet today, civil and international wars again rage. Tragic as they are, they give a special meaning to America's celebration of Armistice Day. They make plain that war does not end war, that peace founded on violence breeds further violence, that what is achieved by force will be overthrown by force!

Truly, the American doughboys who gave their lives on Europe's battlefields will not have died in vain so long as we remember that lesson!

On this Armistice Day America salutes Peace and the men who fought to achieve it, strong in her determination not to break trust with those who died believing they fought a war to end all war!

ROCKAWAY BEACH PEDRO VALLEY

By C. H. T.

Supervisor Smith received twenty Pedro residents, headed by Karl Strutz, in informal conference one night about three weeks ago, at Daly City, to talk over some of the urgent needs of the little village, climbing up it unruly hill. The matter of road improvement was, perhaps, the dominant issue discussed, especially relating to the "washboard" effect of Grande and Belfast avenues at present so disastrous to the cars that must use them every day. Supervisor Smith was most kind and courteous in listening to the statements about deplorable conditions, and he promised to do all in his power to aid in correcting them.

The Peter Haugaards went to the city one day last week, returning the same night. Mr. Haugaard has been laid up with a bad attack of the prevalent intestinal flu, but is nearly well again.

An informal get-together and dinner in celebration of the return of the Clyde Garners to their Pedro home, brought a congenial group of neighbors together last Friday evening. The Garners recently moved to town for the winter, but soon decided that they are happier in Pedro working in the garden and fixing up the house. Anne says they "just took the furniture for a little vacation trip." Now it's all back in place again, the pretty curtains at the windows, and the "For Sale" sign removed from the front of the house. Guests present at the dinner were: Mr. and Mrs. George Olmo, Hector Martin, Karl Strutz and Wm. Beeler.

Josephine Lack, of Rockaway, is still trying to find homes for her heterogeneous collection of animals, that must be removed because the owner of the little Rockaway canyon property plans to improve it for aonther tenant. Josephine may be seen any day striding around with a heavy sack over her shoulder, full of odds and ends of food for her pets. So far, she has managed to dispose of most of the animals—a mule, or so, a few goats, and the like. But she still has a motley array of dogs, cats and rabbits to place, before she is foot-loose and free to find a new home for herself.

A serious accident occurred on the new highway just south of Rockaway Saturday afternoon, when a car driven north by foreman Baker went out of control and ran into one coming the other way. The Baker car turned over, wheels in the air, and was badly crumpled. Mr. Robert Garnett and his sister, of San Francisco, were in the other car, which was also wrecked. Mr. Garnett suffered a concussion of the head, and both he and his sister were terribly shocked, bruised and shaken up. Baker, however, is said to have been pulled from under his car without serious injury. All went to the hospital in the ambulance hastily summoned, that arrived with commendable promptness. The two cars were removed, and soon the roadway was cleared of all but the horrifying memory of the accident. William Shawk, son of Dr. Shawk, took several pictures of the occurrence. Mr. Garnett received emergency treatment from Dr. Shawk before the ambulance came.

William (otherwise Bill) Shawk and his wife, who live in Los Angeles, are visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Shawk, in Rockaway. Bill occupies himself taking photographs, and doing some building about the place. Lately he completed a handsome sun room in the garden, which his father uses for a surgery and study. Jim Shawk, Bill's brother, rejoiced last week in having caught a fine eel weighing over four pounds. Jim is the fisherman of the family, and he keeps after the fish day in and day out.

Mrs. Jennie Bicknell's new lunchroom continues to draw school children, who by this time , regard the pretty place as their own particular property. The Troglias are getting established in their new house on the slope just above the town. Jim's new delivery car is not solid black, but a rich, dark green.

Sundays are busy days in Pedro Valley, ringing with the sound of hammer and saw, while residents devote themselves to improving their houses and gardens. They work with fine enthusiasm, but they are not so happy when the tax bills come along, with an extra dab of tax to pay for each improvement they have labored to put in. Some day, at that, we might see the folly of fining industry and initiative, and place the taxes somewhere else. However, that is a point in the large subject of economics—and we're writing about neighborhood happenings at Pedro Valley and Rockaway.

Thirty-eight acres on the south slopes of Pedro Valley changed hands a couple of weeks ago, in what is said to be a subdivision project. Nobody seems to know definitely much about the deal, and even the present tennant, who has leased the property for several past years, declares he has no knowledge regarding the purchaser, or the price paid.

Mrs. Wm. Beeler, like so many of her neighbors, suffered from a bad attack of the flu a couple of weeks ago, but she is entirely recovered now.

Harry Rees is "as happy as a boy with a new toy" in the recent purchase of a blooded race horse, "Johnny Hills," sired by a famous English horse, "Langdon Hills," who is reputed to have won $82,000.00 for his owner. "Johnny Hills" is one of the racers from the stable of the late Major Sven Christenson of Pleasanton, auctioned off in the sale. "Johnny" was shaped up by Trainer Malcolm, and he promises to make history on the track at Tanforan, where he was transferred from Bay Meadows last Saturday. He will soon be pounding the turf at California's world-famous course, where we hope he will pile up as much mone yfor Harry, as did his sire, Langdon, for his master.

STILL FRONTIER CALIFORNIA WITH ONE RESPECT

State Is Yet In Infancy Regarding Complete Extermination Of Predatory Animals

In one respect, at least, California—despite its thriving industries, its great cities and its national leadership in progressive agriculture—is still a frontier state, fighting the age-old battle of the frontier for survival.

Howling defiance at the march of civilization, the coyote still stalks his prey in more than two-thirds of the counties of the commonwealth.

And if you happen to be a reader of the California Wool Grower, official publication of the California Wool Growers Association, such headlines as "Depredations of Coyotes May Force Sheepmen Out of Business" are more or less commonplace.

The battle between the livestock men and the prairie wolf is a feud which will doubtless continue until the last coyote's pelt has been hung out to dry, but it is a costly war—still far from ended.

During the 1936-1937 fiscal year, which ended July 1, predatory animal forces in California expended $99,657.55 in the unending war of extermination against coyotes, bobcats and other predators. Of this amount the federal government contributed $29,158.47; the state paid $21,304.66, and the various counties and wool growers $49,194.42. This total, of course, does not include the sums paid in bounties by the various counties or the cost of hunters and trappers employed by individual farmers.

An active phase of the predatory control work is the contest carried on each year by the Associated Sportsmen of California, which now has twenty-one clubs killing predators, compared with nine a year ago. During the first six months of 1937 these clubs have killed six mountain lions, 102 bobcats and 124 coyotes.

To city residents it may be little short of amazing that more than $150,000 per year, counting the expenditures of all agencies, is being spent in California to exterminate predatory animals which are generally associated with primitive days and the wide open spaces. But the expenditure is only a fraction of the losses which otherwise would result. California is still fighting the old fight of the frontier—and doing a vigorous, effective work in protecting its stockmen from the depredations of wild animals. But losses are still heavy and the fight must be intensified before it is won.

Huskies See Win Over California

Recent arrival of Washington's Huskies in the San Francisco Bay area three days before their contest with the California Bears proved to Bear supporters that the northern boys have their hearts set on handing the Berkeley team its first 1937 defeat. Jimmy Phelan, Washington coach, brought his squad south early so that the boys could get used to weather conditions. "I think we can beat the Bears," he said uncertainly.

A Review Of What P. W. A. Has Accomplished During Its Existence In Benefits Derived

(By Hart Goodrich)

PWA goes out of existence in June, 1939, by executive order. While the Public Works Admniistration is in the process of folding its tents, let us review some of the achievements of PWA since its birthday in June of 1933.

In all but three counties of approximately 7000, that go to make up the states in the Union, PWA leaves a monument to itself. It has had a hand in the financing of 70 percent of all school buildings erected in the last four years, in the financing of 62 percent of the hospitals built in that time, and in the financing of 64 percent of the water works constructed in the last four years.

It inaugurated the first federal slum and low-rent housing program in America. PWA has set new standards of work and material in civic and state projects through its inspection division.

PWA financing has created approximately 1,452,627,850 man-hours of labor at the site of construction, not to mention the creation of 3,631,569,625 man-hours "behind the lines" in the industries such as lumbering, steel manufacturing, cement and brick manufacturing, as well as the transportation lines handling these products.

The toughest problem tackled by PWA was the rehabilitation of our school system. During the recent so-called depression school construction was practically at a standstill; yet the National Education Association has pointed out that, for example, in 90 cities having 30,000 or more inhabitants additional building facilities for 2700 pupils were needed to replace condemned and temporary school structures and to provide full-time accomodations for all pupils. Then there were some 16,000 consolidated schools needed for 5,000,000 rural pupils who were at the time attending school in poorly equipped buildings.

Loans and grants have been made by PWA for more than 3700 school projects. Assistance has been given in the building of more than 2000 auditoriums, 1720 gymnasiums, 884 libraries and 1000 school shops and cafeterias.

Do you think PWA got its "money's worth" for the people? I say, emphatically, "Yes!"

LIBRARIAN WILL ADDRESS GROUP

Bayshore P. T. A. will hold Fathers Night, Friday evening of next week, with Miss C. Dills, county librarian, as the guest speaker. Her topic will be "Understanding Through Today's Books." All members, especially the men members, are urged to be present at this meeting.

A study circle will be held at Riley Hall, Wednesday afternoon of next week, and Mrs. Bea Jeppesen has promised that refreshments will be served.

The children of Bayshore School greatly enjoyed the Hallowe'en treat provided by the P. T. A. members last week.

Mrs. O. Percival reports that her hot dog sales are held every first Wednesday of the month at Riley Hall, and are proving very popular with both the children and the grownups.

Mrs. Idaho Gaines, chairman of the food sale recently held, thanks all who helped to make it a success.

Football Rooters Stage Big Doings

A noise parade, bonfire, and rally this Friday evening will announce to the Peninsula that San Mateo Junior College is to meet the San Francisco Jaysee in a conference football game this Saturday afternoon at the San Mateo High School field. The game is the biggest home tilt of the season for the Mateans.

Students have been preparing for their bonfire all week. Speakers, including outstanding coaches, will address the students and townspeople at the rally.

San Mateo opened grid hostilities with San Francisco last year and won the initial game 7-0.

NEW PAVEMENT DISCOVERED TO BE SKID PROOF

Educator At Minnesota University Has Developed New Type Of Safety Tread Highway

It is believed by Dr. E. W. Davis of the University of Minnesota that he has discovered a cure for the greatest hazards of our highways—skidding.

The old car he has mounted in his laboratory gets an almost daily drubbing in the experiments centered around a cast iron pavement, non-skid, non-glare, with a corrugated surface similar to the tread on an automobile tire.

This proposal of the Minnesota scientist blends into the business of trying to find a greater market for that state's vast stores of low grade iron ore.

Dr. Davis said: "This new pavement would speed up traffic on the highways and at the same time assure almost complete car control. The design of the cast iron blocks, with their corrugated surface, provides a greater amount of grip and cuts down considerably on reflection and glare."

The doctor believes iron pavement would last 50 to 100 years. He is confident that when the two common types of skidding can be controlled, forward skidding and side skidding, a pavement will be in use that can be driven on as fast in rainy weather as in dry.

Breaks Ankle In Grid Game Here

Nick Perata, 21 A street, Colma, sustained a broken left ankle while playing football in Daly City, Saturday of last week.

He was treated at the Villa Hospital.

BAYSHORE NEWS

Mrs. M. Pasini is conducting an outdoor Christmas tree movement; her helpers are the children of the community. All who are able to do so are urged to co-operate and help make our town one of beauty and Christmas cheer during the holidays. Mrs. Pasini says a prize will go to the child having the finest tree. You are urged to plant your living tree for next year if you haven't one yet.

MEDICAL TESTS REQUISITE FOR ADVANCEMENT

Students Of San Mateo Junior College Will Be Rigidly Examined As To Qualifications

Medical aptitude tests, furnished by the committee of the Association of American Medical Colleges, will be given on December 3 at the San Mateo Junior College. These tests are required of all those who plan to continue their studies in medical schools.

Students who have not completed all of their pre-medical work may take the tests if they will finish the required work in time to enter medical school in 1938.

Last year 10,853 students took the tests in hundreds of colleges designated as test centers. If the scholars do not take the tests in December, they must arrange to take them at a later date and at added costs.

Burlingame Returns Courtesy To Jeff Hi

Talented members of the Burlingame High School journeyed to Jefferson Union High School, Wednesday afternoon of this week, to give a program in return for the one put on by the local high school of our district a few weeks ago.

The students were enthusiastic over the excellent program presented. It was a combination of popular and classical music, drama and songs. Henry Traeger, a very accomplished pianist, was especially well received. This exhibition of talented young artists was under the supervision of Mrs. Janice Robison, dramatics coach of Burlingame Union High.

Elio Fontana, president of the Jefferson Union High School Student Body, introduced the Burlingame Student Body president, Thor Johnson, who presented the masters of ceremonies, Messrs. Hodgson and Harkins.

French Club Offers New Study Classes

Use of Modesty

A just and reasonable modesty does not only recommend eloquence, but sets off every great talent which a man can be possessed of. It heightens all the virtues which it accompanies; like the shades in paintings, it raises and rounds every figure, and makes the colors more beautiful, though not so glaring as they would be without it.—Addison.

YOU CAN THROW CARDS IN HIS FACE ONCE TOO OFTEN

WHEN you have those awful cramps; when your nerves are all on edge—don't take it out on the man you love.

Your husband can't possibly know how you feel for the simple reason that he is a man.

A three-quarter wife may be no wife at all if she nags her husband seven days out of every month.

For three generations one woman has told another how to go "smiling through" with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps Nature tone up the system, thus lessening the discomforts from the functional disorders which women must endure in the three ordeals of life: 1. Turning from girlhood to womanhood. 2. Preparing for motherhood. 3. Approaching "middle age."

Don't be a three-quarter wife, take LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND and Go "Smiling Through."

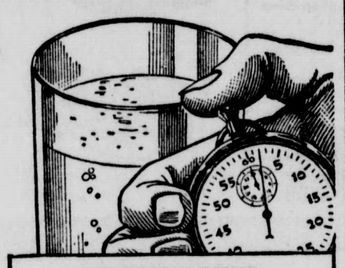
THE REASON HEADACHES ARE RELIEVED SO FAST



THE REASON BAYER ASPIRIN WORKS SO FAST

Drop a Bayer Aspirin tablet into a tumbler of water.

By the time it hits the bottom of the glass it is disintegrating.

This speed of disintegration enables genuine BAYER Aspirin tablets to start "taking hold" of headache and similar pain a few minutes after taking.

All people who suffer occasionally from headaches ought to know this way to quick relief.

At the first sign of such pain, take two Bayer Aspirin tablets with a half glass of water. Sometimes if the pain is more severe, another dose is necessary later, according to directions.

If headaches keep coming back we advise you to see your own physician. He will look for the cause in order to correct it.

The price now is only 15¢ for twelve tablets or two full dozen for 25 cents — virtually, only a cent apiece.

The inspector pulled a paper from his pocket. Mark Trent glowered at it as if it were a rattler with head raised to strike.

"Here it is. The real thing. Signatures and everything o. k. I found it—"

"You found it in my desk, didn't you, Inspector?" Brooke interrupted icily.

Mark Trent's eyes were stormy, his lips were white.

"That's enough. Don't go on with this, Brooke."

"But I am going on with it."

"Let her tell her story, Mark. It's only fair to her."

Sam joined the two men before the fire.

"Jed's right, m'lad. The inspector found the paper in your desk. That's your cue, Brooke. Go on from there."

Brooke went on.

She told of her suspicion the first time she had come into this very library that there was a reason other than a passion for the sea in winter which had brought two men from the city to live in Mark Trent's house; and she told of Mrs. Gregory's admission, the afternoon before the Supper club party, that she had witnessed a will of Mary Amanda Dane's and that she had been warned by Jed Stewart not to speak of it. And how, almost before Mrs. Gregory's car was out of the drive, Henri Jacques had confronted her with a paper and the lie that he had found it in her desk.

"Don't speak! Don't!" She interrupted her story sharply as Mark Trent opened his lips. "Let me finish!

"I took it with the idea that if I didn't, he might make more trouble with it. I let him think that I was considering his proposition that I pay him for keeping quiet. Of course I wasn't, but I can't expect you two men who have been suspicious of me from the moment you learned of my friendship with Mrs. Dane, to believe that. I was coming directly to this house with it. First, locked in my room, I looked at it to be sure it wasn't a blackmailing scheme of Henri's. It wasn't. It was Mary Amanda Dane's will leaving all her property, except legacies to the Jacques, to her nephew, Mark Trent."

"Stop and get your breath, Brooke; you'll crack-up if you don't," Sam warned.

"I won't crack-up and I won't stop till I get this thing off my mind. It has been a hideous nightmare, holding back that paper, I mean. Of course the contents of that will were a shock for a minute; but I knew that Mrs. Dane had been just. Then I thought of the play, that the sudden appearance of a missing will—there's drama for you, Sam—might upset the performance; so I locked the thing in my desk. I had planned to bring it here this evening. When I got back from headquarters tonight, I went to my desk to get it. The drawer was empty. Now I know that Inspector Bill Harrison, your sleuth, had found it, Mr. Trent."

"That's enough, Brooke." Mark Trent's voice was low and authoritative. "I don't believe that you have had that will. I know—"

"Wait a minute!" Inspector Bill Harrison cut in. "Come over here."

He spread out the paper on the desk. He drew a flat leather case from his breast pocket and removed from it a white scrap.

"Exhibit A. Watch!"

The scrap fitted into the torn corner. There was a glint in his eyes as they passed from face to face of the three men bending over to read the finely written lines.

"I don't know what the rest of you folks think," his voice was as soft as velvet, "but, in spite of the fact I found it in her desk, I'm sure Miss Reyburn hasn't had the will in her possession ever since it was signed, because—"

He laid the tip of a square-topped finger on the torn-off corner:

"Because I found this scrap caught in Mrs. Hunt's bag the night her diamonds were snitched."

CHAPTER XV

For the length of time it took the old clock in the hall to chime the quarter hour, there was silence in the library, a silence as tense as if the still body of a black-haired woman with the open bag gripped in one bruised hand lay in their midst. Inspector Harrison broke the spell.

"And that ain't all I've got to show you. Bring him in, Tim!"

Brooke's breath stopped as a tall policeman with huge ears pushed a cowering figure into the room. Henri! Henri here! Would he dare persist in the lie that he had found that will in her desk?

"Sit down, Brooke."

With hands on her shoulders Mark Trent drew her from behind the chair and forced her gently into the seat. She felt his presence behind her as he said sharply:

"It's your move, Inspector. Let's get this thing over with."

"It ain't my move, Mark. It's Henri Jacques'. He's going to tell you what's kept him the busiest butler in the U. S. You're on the air, Jacques. Spill it!"

The command held the crack of a lion-tamer's whip. Henri drew his fingers over his slack lips. He made two attempts to speak before he produced a voice.

"I'll tell the whole story, Mr. Mark, and it isn't so bad as the inspector's trying to make out, I swear it isn't. I didn't kill—"

"Start at the beginning!"

"I will, Inspector, I will."

Brooke looked down at her clenched fingers. She couldn't keep her eyes on Henri. Once she had seen a dog being beaten who groveled as he groveled now. His voice shook as he went on:

"It was like this, Mr. Mark. Madame Dane sent for Clotilde and me to come to the living-room one afternoon. It was the nurse's day off. She was in the wheel chair and Madame Gregory was there. Your aunt said as how we were all to sign a paper in her presence and then she was to sign in our presence. She laughed kind of shaky and said:

"I Won't Crack Up and I Won't Stop."

" 'I don't know much law, Anne—Anne was Madame Gregory—but I've learned how a will has to be signed to make it legal.' "

"Did Mrs. Gregory say anything?"

"Yes, Mr. Mark. She said, 'Do you think you should do this without consulting your lawyer?' and your aunt said that Mr. Stewart was away and she didn't dare wait till he came home because she hadn't been feeling well. We wrote our names. Mrs. Gregory left, Clotilde went back to the kitchen, and then the old madame handed the paper to me and said:

" 'Put that in my safe upstairs, Henri. I'll give it to Mr. Stewart when he gets back, but first bring me a glass of sherry. I'm tired.'

"She looked so white I thought she was going to faint. I jammed the paper in my pocket and ran. When I came back with the wine, Miss Reyburn was standing by the mantel laughing; you remember that afternoon, don't you, Miss?"

"Yes."

"Direct your question to me, not to Miss Reyburn, Henri. What did you do with that paper?"

"I was coming to that, Mr. Mark. The old madame was taken very sick that night. Not until after she'd been gone a week or two did I think of it."

"Then of course you read it?"

"Yes, sir."

"You showed it to Clotilde?"

"Yes, sir. "

"When did you and she decide to fasten the theft of it on Miss Reyburn?"

The voice which came from behind Brooke's chair set her a-shiver. A steadying hand rested on her shoulder.

"We—we didn't think of it, Mr. Mark. Mrs. Hunt suggested that."

"How did she know about it?"

Henri passed shaking fingers across his lips.

"Some way she found out that we were going to sell your aunt's silver. Clotilde and I thought we might as well have it as the strange girl she'd left it to."

The glance Henri Jacques cast at the inspector was green with venom.

"Mrs. Hunt said, if I'd get the silver to the white cottage, she'd dispose of it; that it was rare and worth lots of money, that a dealer would believe that it was hers, that he might suspect me. That seemed reasonable. Mrs. Hunt knew of a man to help. She said she'd take care of that will, too, she'd get money out of you for it and we'd go fifty-fifty."

"Go on, Henri!" Mark Trent's voice was hoarse.

"I gave it to her. The afternoon before the filling station mur—hold-up, I showed the man she sent where the silver was, forgot the keys and left them in the doors. I remembered them in the middle of a movie, came home, went upstairs very quiet and got them. The man who was to move the silver to the old limousine was waiting in my room. While you were all laughing and eating downstairs I let him through into the Other House by the upper connecting door. He took the stuff through your house—the Japs were out, and I pretended to go to bed. He was to make a cross on the white cover when he had it in the car. I drove it to the cottage. I went in to tell Mrs. Hunt the silver was outside, ready to take to the city. She—she was on the floor. I swear she was. I swear I didn't touch her."

"But you took that paper over there on the desk out of her bag, didn't you?"

"I told you once I did, Inspector. I felt it belonged to me. But I swear I never touched her."

"Take him out, Tim."

Henri stopped to hurl defiance at Inspector Bill Harrison.

"You think you're smart, but you wouldn't have known anything about this till we were safe out of the country, Inspector, if that expert thief Mrs. Hunt brought into the game hadn't stopped to wash and shave in Mr. Stewart's bathroom. Pretty snappy guy he was. I suppose he had to dress up fine before he called on her. She paid for pulling him in. He got her jewels all right, and he was out to get Mrs. Gregory's tonight. I wasn't in on that deal, Mr. Mark."

"Take him away, Tim." Inspector Harrison's eagle eyes followed the two men from the room before they came back to Brooke.

"Sorry I had to touch your desk, Miss Reyburn, but a high falsetto voice phoned me you had the will—I know now that it was Henri Jacques—so I went through your room while you were all at the play. I guess you're glad the truth is out. The minute I heard of that bath stunt I knew who to look for. That guy has made a specialty of breaking into houses week-ends where the folks were away, of making himself at home in the tub and carrying off what he wanted when he left, mostly men's clothes. Maggie Cassidy was right when she said he was a swell dresser. He ought to be. He's had his pick of the best. It's kind of funny when you think of it, ain't it? When I accused him of killing Mrs. Hunt, he crumpled and spilled the whole story. He had seen her rings when she engaged him to move the silver. Wanted them. Knocked Hunt out first. He's a quick worker. He and his pals aren't killers. There wasn't a gun in the gang-load. There's a joke to it, they don't one of them know yet that the coroner's verdict was 'heart failure from fright.' I've kept that under my hat so I could scare the truth out of them. Well, Mark, your silver's safe and you've got your aunt's money."

"Thanks, Inspector, I'll tell you how much I appreciate what you've done, later. Sam, get Brooke's wrap. I'll take her home. You and Lucette stay here and get the inspector something to eat. Wait for me, Bill, there are a few points that need clearing up. I have something to talk over with Miss Reyburn, then I'll come back."

"You are not going home with me and we have nothing to talk over." Did he think that he could wipe out the memory of his suspicion of her in this lordly manner? Brooke asked herself.

"Oh yes, we have."

Sam chuckled.

"One of the thirty-six dramatic situations. Snap into it, Brooke. It is apparent even to this boyish intelligence that Mark wants to talk to you alone. Fair enough. Why make him go on the air? Be kind to him, he deserves well of his countrymen."

They crossed the terrace in silence. The snow had not been cleared from before the door of Lookout House. Mark Trent swept Brooke from her feet and carried her into the vestibule. He kept an arm about her as he opened the door. Something turning like the wings of an autogiro in her throat, cut off her protest. The green living-room awaited them, softly lighted, faintly fragrant. Above the mantel the Duchess looked down with grave eyes; below, coals, murmurous as purring kittens, gave out a gentle glow.

"Take off your wrap."

Brooke slipped from beneath the velvet and the hands tightening on her shoulders. She barricaded herself behind a high-back chair. With one arm on the mantel, Mark Trent faced her. His eyes, smiling a little, maddeningly cool, filled her with rage. She challenged:

"You would come. Why? Didn't you want to tell me before the others that you had known about that will all the time?"

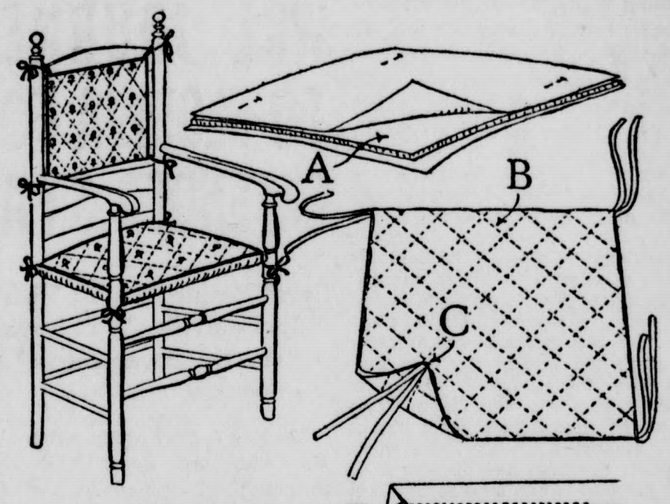
HOW TO SEW

by Ruth Wyeth Spears



There May Be Many Reasons for Making Quilted Chair Pads.

IF ALL the reasons for quilted chair pads were lined up in order of their importance the most intangible reason of all might head the list. Yes, it is quite likely that any decorator, amateur or professional would place atmosphere at the top. But then it is also possible that first rating might be given to the reason that the pressure of slats across the backs of chairs is softened by quilted pads. Then, though it might not be mentioned, it is a known fact that worn out cane seats are sometimes replaced with inexpensive composition seats which may be disguised by gay quilted pads.

Chintz, calico or gingham chair pads are in fact one of the simplest and most inexpensive ways of adding color and charm as well as comfort to a room. Such pads are often used on the backs of chairs and not on the seats, and especially for side chairs, the seat pads used without any back covering. In making such small things as these it is quite easy to do the quilting on the machine. Or, if you wish to take the other point of view about it, the work of quilting them by hand would not consume an unreasonable amount of time. There is no doubt that handwork has a certain quaintness that machine work lacks.

The pads shown here are made with one layer of sheet wadding between the two layers of the chintz. The edge bindings and ties are made of bias tape. Cut the three layers of the pad material exactly the size and shape you want them to be when finished. Place the sheet wadding between the two layers of covering material as shown here at A. Either pin or baste in this position, and then quilt as shown here at B. Make the ties by stitching the lengthwise edges of the bias tape together, and then tack them to the corners of the pad as at C before it is bound. Now, bind the edges, sewing the ties right in with the binding as shown here at D.

Every Homemaker should have a copy of Mrs. Spears' new book, SEWING. Forty-eight pages of step-by-step directions for making slipcovers and dressing tables; restoring and upholstering chairs, couches; making curtains for every type of room and purpose. Why of Eiffel Tower

Although the Eiffel tower is perhaps the most distinctive structure in Paris, how many know what its uses are and why it was built? The Standard American Encyclopedia tells that it was built for the Paris Exposition of 1889, and now, aside from being one of the chief ornaments of the city, it is immensely valuable for meteorological purposes.

Since 1910 the tower has been used as a wireless station and also serves as a time signal center, an electrical illumination system flashing forth the hours and quarters.

Cafe On Highway Is Improved With New Appointments

The new Tiny's Lunch, on the Bayshore Highway near Brisbane, is becoming newer and newer.

For instance:

There is newly dried brick-red paint on the floor, a new back bar for the repose of bottles, the knotted pine interior is newly polished, and there is a new Neon sign above the entrance.

"All this," declares Hazel Hall, proprietor, "gives our customers a new outlook on life."

The Brisbane woman is assisted in her work by Dolly Taylor and Melvin Jenkins.

Understanding Of Art Is Improving

National Art Week is the week set aside all over the United States for the purpose of recognizing the fine arts. Thus, the Woodrow Wilson Elementary School, under the direction of Mrs. Corral, stimulated its young citizens to further enjoy the cultural things of life by meticulously preparing an exhibit of the various types of art work and appreciation given in the school. On Wednesday morning a program for an outdoor assembly of the school was prepared by the art supervisor, for the purpose of establishing the fact as quoted by the well known art critic, Pedro Lemos, that "no life education is complete without a just proportion of art, and that no artist is fully equipped unless his hands can add art not only to marble, paper or canvas, but to any material or surface toward bettering his home needs or solving civic problems." Lemos further states: "Parents no longer need to exclaim, 'I do not want my son to be an artist' or to think that poverty and art go together. The artist today who fundamentally secures the proper art training is in demand and can top the ladder of success in many avenues of American art and industry."

The student chairman for the day was Eldred Hahn, who gave a short talk on the purpose of National Art Week and introduced the speakers. Jean Hanselman read a paper on the "Importance of Art and Our American Civilization," which was followed by a short talk and showing of the reproductions of three famous paintings, namely, the American, Whistler's "Mother," the Italian, Leonardo DaVinci's "The Last Supper," and the French, Millet's "The Angelus." These three pictures were shown and discussed by Edward Bittencourt, Mary Picchi and Ruth Larson. The program closed with a short talk by James Parker on "The possibilities for art appreciation in school, community, and nearness to San Francisco."

Every time something goes wrong in Europe we are reminded of the foresight of Christopher Columbus. He surely discovered America in the right place.

WILL JOURNEY TO FLORIDA FOR EXTENDED STAY

Local Residents Will Visit In Jacksonville With Relatives On Seventeenth Anniversary

Leaving tomorrow by automobile, Mr. and Mrs. Jonas will drive through the Southwest for a month's stay in Jacksonville, Florida, home town of the local couple. There, they will visit with Mrs. Lulu B. Clark, mother of Mrs. Jonas, and with Judge R. E. McDowell, Mr. Jonas' uncle.

Prime purpose of the itinerary, says the Brisbane druggist, is to dispose of some personal property in the Florida city. According to his wife, the journey will mark their seventeenth wedding anniversary.

In the interim, Mr. and Mrs. Ted Radley of San Francisco will be in charge of the Brisbane Drug Store. Prescriptions will be filled as usual by Edward P. Salmon, a licensed pharmacist.

The last time the local residents visited in Jacksonville was in 1927.

NIGHT DRIVING

Are you driving to San Francisco tonight? If so, remember that night driving is six times as hazardous as daytime driving.

About 25 per cent of highway traffic is at night, yet 60 per cent of the accidents occur after dark. Whatever hazards lie beyond the range of your headlights, are practically beyond your control. If this is important to you, reduce your speed by ten miles an hour, be more alert in your driving and use greater caution in meeting the greatly increased risks of night driving.—San Mateo County Traffic Safety Commission.

Jefferson Defeated By San Mateo High

The Jefferson turf was the scene of a great battle between the Jefferson Indians and the San Mateo Wild Cats, Friday of last week.

The Indians took the cellar position from San Mateo when they ended up on the tail end of a 12-6 score.

Throughout the entire game "old man jink" kept after the Indians. A fumble deep in their own territory scored the first San Mateo goal.

A 200 pound line definitely hindered line plunges, driving the Indians to their aerial attack. A pass from Simpson to Clark, who ran a beautiful 30 yards to a goal, tied a knot in a 6-6 score.

The second San Mateo score was the result of a blocked kick deep in Jefferson territory.

For the remainder of the game the Indians tried hard to score, but failed. Compagno, the Jefferson half back, ran the ball to the San Mateo 10 yard line, but the gun ended the Indian chances for victory.

During the half, a short game was staged between teams of the Crocker and Woodrow Wilson schools.
